Molotov Protest Letter Kept Quiet, Dulles Says

WALTHAM, Mass., Feb. 10 (AP).—Allen Dulles, former United States intelligence chief, said tonight the Soviet Communists are suppressing a letter in which V. M. Molotov challenged the Khrushchev regime's peaceful coexistence policy.

"I regret to say we haven't got that letter yet," Mr. Dulles said, "but some day that letter's going to turn up."

Mr. Dulles, interviewed on the national educational television program "Prospects of Mankind," said the Stalinist former foreign minister is known to have written the letter to the Communist Party's central committee because there was a reference to it in the proceedings of the 22d Party Congress in Moscow last fall.

"And as far as we know," Mr. Dulles said, "that letter was a strong presentation of the view that Lenin was not a disciple of coexistence, but Lenin was a disciple of the stronger policy that Stalin advocated, the Chinese are following, and which I think Molotov still

Mr. Molotov has dropped pretty much out of sight since Premier Khrushchev denounced him at the party congress along with other members of a so-called anti-party group.

Mr. Dulles, who was interviewed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, said he did not know what will happen to Mr. Molotov but added:

"They don't liquidate people any more because they hold different views; they put them on a nice dacha somewhere near Moscow and see that they're pretty well ignored."

Mr. Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said he doubts there will be a complete break between the Soviet Union and Communist China. He said the fact they have a common enemy in the Western world will pull them together, even though the Red Chinese believe in a tougher policy than Premier Khrushchev's co-existence line.

The program was taped at Brandeis University as part of a panel discussion.
